FROM: Doug Jensen, Reclamation Specialist

RE: Closure of DOGM File, Minatome Corporation, Cottonwood-Floodwater-Springwater, S/037/056, San Juan County, Utah

This notice has been active since 1978 and has passed through a total of five owners. The original disturbance was made by URADO in 1979 which included a shaft. URADO's activity was short lived and the site was taken over by Total Minerals Inc., which in turn was taken over by Minatome. The site remained inactive until 1987 when Minatome conducted some work at the site which included fencing the shaft and constructing several evaporation ponds. Minatome was taken over by TKS who in turn quit-claimed the site to Dale Lyman in 92-93. No work was done by Mr. Lyman and the area has been relatively inactive since that time.

No reclamation work was done by any of these companies and according to the BLM none of the operators, with the exception of URADO caused much disturbance in the area. We have been unable to contact any of the companies associated with this site to date. This site will be labeled abandoned/retired and retired from UDOGM's files.
